

297

1912 Dates J-Ek

The TIGRIS R. become the general boundary between
Persia and Rome

Dec 297

Narses's victory had serious repercussions in Egypt, where it encouraged a shadowy pretender called LUCIUS DOMITIUS DOMITIANUS to declare himself emperor. When he died (or was killed) after only 4 or 5 months, in Dec 297, his place was taken by the equally obscure Aurelius ACHILLEUS. Order was only restored when Achilles was defeated & killed by Diocletian at Alexandria early in 298.